

New Agent Starter Kit

90-Day Top Producer Structure

This kit gives new Realtors a clear execution plan for the first 90 days, daily activity systems, and practical scripts/templates to build momentum quickly.

You can print the worksheets as many times as needed and use them in your weekly business planning.

What Is Included

- 90-day structure to build lead flow, conversion confidence, and consistency
- High-impact tips, tricks, and advice most new agents are not taught early
- Daily tracker worksheet (print one page and make copies)
- Goal worksheet for clear production targets and activity math
- Social templates for educational, trust-building content

How Top Producers Think in the First 90 Days

Top producers are not trying to look busy. They are trying to become predictable. They track activity, protect lead follow-up time, and evaluate their own numbers every week.

- Daily non-negotiables beat random motivation.
- Lead follow-up speed wins more often than perfect branding.
- Conversations create closings. Content supports conversations.
- A small sphere touched consistently outperforms a large sphere ignored.
- If you do not know your weekly numbers, you cannot manage your pipeline.
- Simple habits repeated daily are what build confidence.

Tips Most New Agents Learn Too Late

- You do not need more leads first. You need better follow-up standards.
- Buyers and sellers read your confidence from your process, not your years in business.
- The first hour of your day should never be consumed by social scrolling.
- Every open house should produce follow-up conversations within 24 hours.
- You should know your pipeline counts at all times: new leads, nurtures, active clients, signed contracts.
- Your database is an asset. Treat it like one.
- Most new agents quit because they get busy, not because they are incapable.

The Daily Success Formula

- One hour of lead generation before distractions.
- One hour of follow-up and relationship building.
- One hour of skill building, role-play, or appointment prep.
- One piece of educational content or market insight.
- An end-of-day review of numbers and tomorrow's first task.

Non-Negotiable Habits

- Use a calendar and block your work time before the day starts.
- Keep all leads in one system so nothing gets lost.
- Return calls and texts quickly and professionally.
- Practice scripts out loud, not only in your head.
- Follow up with every person who shows interest, even if they are not ready yet.

90-Day Structure Overview

Break your first 90 days into three execution phases. Each phase has one mission and a short weekly rhythm.

Days 1-30 | Build Your Foundation

- Set your weekly schedule blocks: prospecting, follow-up, appointments, social, admin.
- Finalize CRM setup and tag pipeline stages.
- Script practice 20 minutes daily: buyer consult, listing intro, objection handling.
- Reach out to 5 to 10 sphere contacts daily with value-first conversations.
- Publish 3 educational posts weekly about the local market and process.
- Learn brokerage forms, disclosures, and how your market handles the basics.
- Choose 2 to 3 lead sources and commit before adding more.

Days 31-60 | Build Visibility + Conversion

- Host or co-host at least 2 open houses this month.
- Use same-day follow-up for all new inquiries.
- Book consultation calls from your content and sphere touches.
- Track weekly conversion metrics and adjust scripts.
- Add referral language to every active client conversation.
- Start collecting testimonials, reviews, and proof points.
- Practice one buyer and one seller role-play each week.

Days 61-90 | Build Consistency + Referrals

- Tighten your best-performing lead sources and remove low-return tasks.
- Launch a monthly database nurture touchpoint (email or video).
- Ask every happy client for review and one referral introduction.
- Create a repeatable pre-listing and buyer onboarding packet.
- Prepare next-quarter goals based on real conversion data.
- Review your numbers and double down on what actually converts.
- Write your personal process so you can repeat it without guessing.

12-Week Roadmap

Use this roadmap to stay focused. Each week has one main job.

Week 1: Set up your calendar, CRM, scripts, and tracking system.

Week 2: Make database calls, send value messages, and practice your intro script.

Week 3: Learn your market stats and create simple social content.

Week 4: Start consistent follow-up and build your first appointment targets.

Week 5: Attend or host an open house and track all conversations.

Week 6: Review objections and improve your buyer and seller consultation flow.

Week 7: Reach out to past connections and ask for introductions.

Week 8: Study pricing, contracts, and how to explain value clearly.

Week 9: Build your referral routine and strengthen client communication.

Week 10: Audit your pipeline and remove time-wasting habits.

Week 11: Refine your best-performing lead source and content style.

Week 12: Lock in your next 90-day goals using actual results.

What To Track Every Week

- New conversations started
- Follow-up attempts made
- Appointments booked
- Appointments held
- Active clients in pipeline
- Content posted
- Referrals requested
- Referrals received

Daily Routine Blueprint

Use this as a sample routine and adjust it to your schedule.

- Morning: review goals, priorities, and follow-up list before checking social media.
- Late morning: prospecting calls, follow-up, or client outreach.
- Afternoon: appointments, showings, or market research.
- Evening: content posting, CRM updates, and next-day planning.

Conversation Starters You Can Use

- I wanted to check in and see if your timeline or goals have changed.
- I came across a market update that made me think of you.
- Are you open to a quick five-minute update on what buyers are seeing right now?
- What would need to happen for you to feel ready to move forward?
- Would it help if I sent a simple next-step plan?

When You Feel Stuck

- Return to your daily numbers instead of your emotions.
- Choose the next action, not the perfect one.
- Call one person, write one post, or send one follow-up.
- Keep moving until momentum returns.

Weekly Rhythm (Simple and Repeatable)

Use this structure each week so your progress is measurable.

- Monday: pipeline review, lead follow-up sprint, weekly goals reset
- Tuesday: prospecting block + social content creation
- Wednesday: appointments, showings, and consult prep
- Thursday: open house prep or community networking
- Friday: follow-up closeout, metrics review, next-week setup
- Saturday/Sunday: client-facing activity and relationship touches

Numbers to Track Weekly

- New leads added
- Follow-up conversations completed
- Appointments set
- Buyer consults and listing consults held
- Active clients in pipeline
- Referrals requested and received

Fast Confidence Builders

- Role-play one script objection daily with another agent.
- Use a pre-consult checklist for every appointment.
- Send same-day recap messages after every meaningful conversation.
- Save your best responses in a personal script bank.

Daily Tracker Worksheet (Print and Copy)

Print this page and make copies for daily use.

Date:

Top 3 Income-Producing Priorities:

Top 3 People I Need To Contact Today:

Prospecting Contacts Completed (target and actual):

Follow-Up Conversations Completed:

Appointments Set or Confirmed:

Social Content Posted (topic and CTA):

One Skill I Practiced Today:

Daily Tracker Worksheet (Page 2)

Pipeline Snapshot (new leads, nurtures, active clients):

Client Service Tasks Completed:

What I Learned From Today's Conversations:

Wins Today:

Lessons or Objections to Practice:

Tomorrow's First Priority:

Follow-Up Tasks Still Open:

Use Instructions

- Keep one copy on your desk and one in your field bag.
- At end of day, circle what moved business forward.
- Every Friday, review your 5 most recent sheets for patterns.
- If you miss a day, do not quit. Reset the next morning and keep the chain going.

Goal Worksheet

Use this worksheet to reverse-engineer monthly production targets into weekly actions.

Quarterly GCI Goal:

Average Commission Per Closing:

Closings Needed This Quarter:

Appointments Needed Per Month:

Conversations Needed Per Week:

Lead Sources to Prioritize (top 3):

Daily Activity Target:

Weekly Accountability Partner:

Commitment Block

What will I do daily no matter what?

Who will hold me accountable weekly?

What am I willing to stop doing to make room for growth?

Social Templates (Use, Personalize, and Post)

Each template is designed to build trust, invite conversation, and position you as a local guide.

How to Use Social Media Without Wasting Time

- Post to educate, not to impress.
- Use a call to action so people know how to respond.
- Mix market updates, client education, behind-the-scenes posts, and personal trust builders.
- Reply to comments and messages fast.
- Treat every post as a conversation starter, not a popularity contest.

Template 1: Buyer Education Post

Most first-time buyers think they need 20% down. In many cases, that is not true. If buying this year is on your radar, I can walk you through options and what to expect in our local market. Message me 'BUYER PLAN' and I will send my simple step-by-step guide.

Template 2: Seller Positioning Post

Thinking about selling in the next 6 to 12 months? The best results usually come from prep done before the sign goes in the yard. If you want a no-pressure game plan for pricing, timeline, and prep, message me 'SELLER PLAN'.

Template 3: Local Market Snapshot

Quick market update for [CITY/AREA]: inventory is [up/down], average days on market is [X], and well-priced homes are still moving fast. If you want to know what this means for your move, send me a message.

More Social Templates

Template 4: Open House Follow-Up

Thanks to everyone who stopped by today. If you missed it and want the photo tour plus similar homes in this price range, send me 'TOUR LIST' and I will forward it.

Template 5: Trust Builder Story

Real estate is not just about contracts, it is about confidence in big decisions. My goal is to make each step clear so clients feel informed, not overwhelmed. If that is the kind of support you want, I am here to help.

Template 6: Referral Prompt

I am accepting a few new buyer and seller clients this month. If someone you care about needs honest guidance and a clear plan, feel free to connect us. I will take great care of them.

Template Format You Can Reuse

- Hook: one myth, one trend, or one question
- Value: one practical takeaway
- CTA: one clear next step (message a keyword)

Additional Post Ideas

- A day in the life of a new Realtor
- What I wish every first-time buyer knew
- 3 things sellers should know before listing
- Local restaurant, neighborhood, or community spotlight
- A short win from your week and what you learned from it

Lead Conversion Reminders

- If they engage once, follow up more than once.
- If they are not ready, nurture them instead of dropping them.
- If someone asks a question, answer it with clarity and confidence.
- If a conversation is warm, move it to a call or appointment.

Simple Follow-Up Framework

- Day 0: respond quickly and answer the question.
- Day 1: send helpful next-step info.
- Day 3: check in with a question.
- Day 7: share a market update or tip.
- Day 14: ask if timing has changed.

Final Advice

- Be useful before you try to be impressive.
- Stay visible long enough for people to trust you.
- Keep learning, keep calling, and keep following up.
- The agents who win are usually the ones who stay consistent when others stop.

